

Says Trieste Plan Aimed At Bridgehead To Attack Slavs

By JOSEPH DYNAN

Paris, Sept. 17 (AP) — Yugoslav spokesman Ales Bebler accused the western powers today of seeking to establish a bridgehead in the Free City of Trieste for future military action against Yugoslavia.

Opening the Slavic bloc's attack upon the proposed boundaries of the free territory, Bebler told a peace conference commission the only reason these were expanded beyond the Trieste city limits was to "allow space for the deployment of armed forces."

Bebler referred to the governor's powers in the free state as envisaged by western nations, and said they could be explained only by considerations of power politics.

"He can even call in foreign troops," said Bebler. "But against whom? The object of their action is never named but is always implied — Yugoslavia."

Discuss Frontiers

Bebler spoke as statesmen lined up once again in Italian political and territorial commission on opposing sides of the Trieste issue — this time in connection with the frontiers of the projected free area.

Bebler urged the adoption of a Yugoslav amendment which would push the boundaries back to the city proper, a proposal paralleled by a White Russian amendment and contested by South African and Australian amendments which would extend the free state south in Istria to include Pola and other Italian coastal communities.

The Military committee, meanwhile, upheld the foreign ministers council draft of disarmament clauses in the Italian treaty after rejecting, 16 to 4, a South African amendment which would have held Italy to military and naval restrictions at least five years regardless of decisions made by the United Nations Security Council.

Look to Rome Pact

Only Australia, New Zealand and the Netherlands supported South Africa in this move whose defeat confines Italy to the military clauses until the United Nations Security Council makes some agreement with Rome for peace enforcement.

Some conference sources predicted that the Slav delegations, mindful of Senator Tom Connally's words yesterday that Trieste "must be free from intrigue and conspiracy," might do what they did yesterday in the case of Bulgaria — quietly drop demands for extra territory in order to concentrate on the defensive struggle against opposing demands.

Connally's counter-blast against Russian Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov's Saturday speech seemed convincing evidence to the 21-nation parley that the U. S. State Department was sticking to its "tough" policy toward Russia despite last week's criticism by Commerce Secretary Henry Wallace.

Reds Abandon Bulgaria

This policy, however, has never shown any indication of providing U. S. support for minority demands beyond the provisions of the treaty texts drafted by the Big Four.

Continuation of that policy would indicate U. S. support for de-militarization of the Bulgarian border, but opposition to Greek demands for a slice of border territory from Bulgaria. Russia yesterday abandoned her support of Bulgarian claims to the return of western Thrace from Greece, but not of her opposition to the opposing Greek demands.

MOUNT OPENS 139TH TERM

Mt. St. Mary's college, Emmitsburg, began its 139th year today with the largest enrollment in its history.

More than 500 students registered for the coming year Monday and most of that number began classes as freshmen this morning. Upper classmen who did not register Monday were being registered today and all upperclassmen will begin their classes Wednesday.

Final enrollment in the college will be approximately 597, according to requests previously made for admission to the institution.

Jammed with students, of whom about 60 per cent are World War II veterans, the college has made arrangements with a number of private home owners in Emmitsburg to lodge some of the men there. The group now living in Emmitsburg will return to the college campus sometime in December with the completion of a number of barracks school officials said.

EDWARD D. CULP IS NAMED HEAD OF LEGION POST

Edward D. Culp, York street, who served two years in the European Theater of Operations during World War II, was elected commander of the Albert J. Lentz post of the American Legion Monday night.

He will succeed Wilbur A. Geiselman, World War I vet who served during the past year as commander. Culp returned to Gettysburg in December after three years' service with the army to resume operation of his service station on Buford avenue.

World War II veterans were named to seven of the 10 elective posts filled Monday night. Appointive officers will be named following the installation of the new officers in October when District Commander Herbert Smith, of Red Lion, will visit Gettysburg.

Others Elected

Other World War II men named to posts were Glenn Raffensperger, first vice commander; Samuel Weaver, second vice commander; Harry G. Ridinger, adjutant; Edward G. Crist, chaplain; Charles Fridinger, first sergeant-at-arms, and Thomas Ziegler, second sergeant-at-arms.

World War I members named to posts included James Howe, finance officer; Paul Spangler, historian, and William Timmins, Sr., trustee.

A total of 151 members attended the session at which Trustee Timmins, who is head of the building committee, reported that the building committee will meet tonight to select a contractor for the renovations planned for the Legion home on Baltimore street. The plans for the renovations have been approved by state officials, he said.

Fifteen applications for membership were received and approved, bringing to 1,266 the number of members at the present time.

Paul M. Rohrbach presided at the meeting in the absence of Commander Geiselman.

NEW POTATOES CONSIGNED AS CATTLE FEED

Thousands of bushels of newly-harvested Irish Candler potatoes which have been dumped for the government in a Franklin county farmer's field will be disposed of by the government as cattle feed or processed into alcohol, Public Opinion, Chambersburg newspaper, states in a recent article.

The story follows:

"The 'temporary storage' period for at least a portion of the thousands of bushels of newly-harvested Irish Candler potatoes, purchased last week by the U. S. Agriculture Department from Warren W. Farmer, R. D. 3, and then dumped in an open field on Farmer's farm, ended today as truckload after truckload of the potatoes were hauled away to an unannounced destination.

"Plainly displeased with the publicity incident to the government's open storage of potatoes, a representative of the local Production and Marketing Administration office, declined to reveal today the purchaser of the potatoes or their destination.

"The PMA spokesman did reveal, however, that the potatoes now being removed from the Farmer farm will be used for cattle feed. 'We are selling what we can for feed and the rest will be taken care of by the government,' he declared, adding that 'none will be left here to rot.'

"The spuds not purchased for cattle feed—at 20 cents a hundred pounds—may ultimately be processed into alcohol, he said.

Price Sustaining Program

"Potatoes sold by the government, for use as cattle feed are colored to prevent their resale for human consumption.

"Farmer, currently completing the harvesting of three acres of tomato plantings, has been deluged in past days by requests for sale of potatoes to individuals. It was explained this morning that Farmer is permitted to sell any quantity of potatoes to individuals, and has disposed of many in that manner. Potatoes sold to individuals, however, are sold directly from the field or from a storage supply in Farmer's barn. Once the spuds are dumped on the outside storage pile they belong to the government and may be sold only by PMA agents.

"The potatoes are being sold to the government by Farmer under a price sustaining program set up by an act of Congress under the Seagall amendment. Under provisions of the amendment the government is obligated to purchase surplus farm commodities as a price sustaining measure."

Weather Forecast

Clear and little change in temperature tonight. Wednesday, sunny, warmer.

COURT ORDERS INVESTIGATION OF TESTIMONY

One wife was refused a support order from her husband and another was granted a temporary allotment of $5 per week pending the outcome of a court-directed investigation after hearings Monday afternoon in two desertion and non-support cases in court here.

Mrs. H. Russell Stoops won a temporary support order of $5 a week from her husband, who resides on Gettysburg R. D., after a hearing that lasted several hours. The husband also must pay the costs of the case.

Judge W. C. Sheely indicated the support order was made permanent or rescinded after an investigation is made of facts in which prosecution and defense witnesses were in direct disagreement in their testimony Monday. The facts in the case should form the basis for prosecution for perjury against the witnesses whose statements may be proved false, the court said.

In the second case for the afternoon and the last for the day's session, Edward Gastley, Railroad street, was directed to pay $5 per week for the support of his two children but was not required to contribute to the support of his wife, Gladys, who testified she is now keeping house for a young man at Eldersburg, Md.

Gastley told the court he returned to the States from overseas duty, September 1 and a short time later was arrested on a support charge brought by his wife who had declined to return to housekeeping with him. Mrs. Gastley told the court they "never had gotten along" but Gastley denied any family troubles before he entered the service.

The next court session will be September 28 in judicial chambers. Open court will be held next on October 21.

LITTLESTOWN'S NEW FIRE ENGINE DUE IN 10 DAYS

The Alpha Fire company of Littlestown received word Saturday that the new American LaFrance 500-gallon pumper will be received in town within the next ten days, Harry W. Badders, the secretary, announced today. This new piece of equipment is the latest thing in fire engines, and will be the finest piece of fire apparatus in this part of the country, local fire officials claim.

The pumper cost $7,250, and with necessary accessories and equipment, the total cost will reach $9,000. The Littlestown firemen hope to raise enough in their current drive for funds to clear this debt. A canvass for cash donations is being conducted this week by the firemen in the borough, and next week they will canvass the rural areas.

The Littlestown Chamber of Commerce will hold an outing Wednesday afternoon and evening at William Renner's cottage, near Starner's dam. The committee has announced that there will be entertainment and refreshments. All members and other interested persons are urged to attend the gathering.

Chief Issues Warning

Parking on the wrong side of the street facing oncoming traffic, which is a violation of both the state motor code and a borough ordinance, has been prevalent in Littlestown borough, and must be discontinued, Chief of Police Leon H. Gage announced today. This dangerous and illegal practice has been especially noticed on M and Cemetery streets, he said. No further warnings will be issued, the chief stated, and the law will be strictly enforced, with no exceptions.

Price On Meat Meals Cut; Cotton Clothing Up

Washington, Sept. 17 (AP) — An OPA edict sent restaurant price ceilings on meat meals back to June 30 levels today, but the cost of cotton clothing inched up another notch.

Also on the price front:

1. OPA studied a petition for higher prices on General Motors automobiles after granting an average six per cent increase in retail ceilings for Ford-built cars.

2. The Price Decontrol Board, which meets tomorrow to decide whether to restore ceilings on dairy products, reported opposition to revival of controls in nine of the first dozen written statements received.

The OPA order restoring June 30 restaurant ceilings immediately applies to all meals and individual menu items in which meat is the major ingredient.

An OPA official told a reporter that "most of the increases we have heard about have been about 10 per cent."

Restaurants still are permitted to base their ceilings on the actual cost in the case of menu items which still are ceiling free, such as fish, poultry and dairy products.

OPA's restaurant order came as the agency announced that retail prices for about half of all cotton clothing produced are going up another one per cent.

The new boost is necessary, the agency said, to offset a price hike averaging two per cent in ceiling prices for cotton textile made by mills paying a wage increase of five cents hourly approved last week by the Wage Stabilization Board.

These mills, OPA said, turn out "more than half" of the total volume of cotton production.

On bed sheets and pillow cases, towels, table cloths and napkins, the retail increase will amount to about 2 1/2 per cent, OPA estimated.

The textile increase, on top of an 18 1/2 per cent average price hike authorized last month, is effective tomorrow. The new increase for clothing, which consumers will begin paying in four to eight weeks, is in addition to a climb of seven to 10 per cent which resulted from the earlier jump in textile ceilings.

Here And There News Collected At Random

The biggest Christmas buying spree in history is a probability for department stores and other retail outlets, this year, according to a report in Business Week, a business publication.

The report says that the index of department store sales for August "almost blew the top out of the thermometer."

The report further observes: "Department stores accepted what looked like a miracle—at least to those who had been loud in predicting buyers' strikes—with utter equanimity. Preliminary reports for early September indicated sales were still climbing. And by Christmas, department store controllers predict, the swelling stream of dollars will grow into the greatest torrent on record."

AFL Longshoreman Resume Work; CIO Eases Pickets

(By The Associated Press)

AFL longshoremen resumed work today on several New York piers following a National Maritime Union (CIO) decision to cease picketing ships manned by the AFL Seafarers International Union "except where they are berthed at the same dock with NMU vessels."

The first break in the strike, begun September 5 by AFL seamen against a Wage Stabilization Board decision limiting negotiated wage increases, occurred without incident, police said. They estimated 500 men were at work by 8 a. m. (EDT) and that six piers were free of pickets.

All foreign ships not under contract to the NMU were also exempt from picketing under the new directive, issued this morning by NMU President Joseph Curran after a conference with his aides at union headquarters in New York and in the name of the national strike policy committee of the NMU.

Curran's order did not mention the future action to be taken by NMU members regarding ships manned by the AFL Sailors Union of the Pacific.

The NMU head said the union's action would free about 40 SIU ships in the port of New York, permitting them to prepare at once to sail.

Curran's directive followed by several hours a request by the AFL Maritime Trades Department that the NMU withdraw its picket lines around all vessels on the Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf coasts except CIO-contracted ships "to eliminate the possibility of wide-open jurisdictional warfare along all docks in all ports."

In urging the NMU withdraw its pickets, John Owens, executive secretary of the department, which speaks for AFL maritime unions, added that AFL maritime unions would respect picket lines around vessels whose operators have contracts with the NMU or the CIO Marine Cooks and Stewards Union.

What happens to checks after they arrive at a bank was outlined Monday evening at the regular meeting of Rotary in the YWCA by Edgar L. Deardorff, vice president of the First National bank of Gettysburg and a member of the local Rotary club.

Checks, Deardorff pointed out, are payable by the amount written in the body of the check rather than by the figures "and surprisingly enough it is not infrequent for busy people to write out the larger sum and forget the smaller in a check. For example we might receive a check with the figures calling for $26 and with 'twenty dollars' written in the body of the check. In that case we can pay only $20. If the check is written by one of our depositors or a person in or around Gettysburg we simply call them and get their approval to pay the $26 if that is what they meant."

He explained how the Federal Reserve banks act as an exchange among banks with the local banks sending checks drawn on other financial institutions to the Philadelphia Federal Reserve Bank and receiving each day from the Federal Reserve bank the checks drawn on local banks and turned in for cashing at other financial institutions.

At the local bank the checks, after they have been studied for signature and endorsement, are photographed, Deardorff said, with the microfilm then filed away in case any request would ever be made to see the check.

When a person deposits a check, the cash is not immediately available for the account of the person depositing the check, Deardorff said. Depending on the distance of the bank on which the check is drawn from Gettysburg it may be one, two, three or more days before the check is cleared and the cash available on the account of the depositor, he said.

A total of 46 Rotarians and guests were present. The president, Dr. Chester N. Gitt, who presided, announced that the Rotary signs on the entrances to Gettysburg have been painted. William Tyson reported on a proposed formation of a dinner club among wives of members of the Rotary to meet on Monday evenings at the same time as Rotary meets. Those who are interested in the idea were asked to contact Mrs. Tyson or Mrs. Roy W. Gifford.

REV. R. M. HUNT NEW HEAD OF MINISTERIUM

The Rev. Robert M. Hunt, Presbyterian pastor, was elected president of the Gettysburg Ministerium at the September meeting of the local clergymen Sunday evening at the Methodist parsonage. He succeeds the Rev. Dr. Ralph R. Gresh, St. James Lutheran pastor, as Ministerium head.

The Rev. Floyd A. Carroll, local Methodist pastor, was named secretary-treasurer to succeed the Rev. Howard S. Fox, pastor of the Trinity Evangelical and Reformed church.

The group decided that their churches will return to Standard Time at services on Sunday, September 29.

Plan Union Service

Plans were made for the union community Thanksgiving service to be held in the Methodist church at 9 a.m. on that day. The sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Roy K. Miller, pastor of the Church of the Brethren here. The offering received at the service will go to the Gettysburg Civic Nursing Association.

The Ministerium voted cooperation in yet incomplete plans for local observance of the one hundred anniversary of the American Bible Society.

Plan Memorial Gift

Doctor Gresh announced that the gift of books to be placed in the Adams County Free Library as a memorial to the Rev. W. N. Zoblir will be presented in the near future.

Doctor Gresh appointed the Rev. Messrs. Hunt and Carroll as a committee to interview Miss Margaret McMillan, executive secretary of the county chapter of the Red Cross, concerning the care of transients who come to Gettysburg.

The Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Dwight F. Putman will be hosts to the ministers and their wives next month.

DRIVER CHARGED AFTER COLLISION

Harry E. Border, Jr., 25, East Berlin, R. I., will be charged by state police before Justice of the Peace Robert P. Snyder with making an improper right turn as a result of a two-car collision two miles north of here on the Biglerville road this morning at 8:15 o'clock.

Border, a carpenter, was driving south on the Biglerville road when he attempted to turn into a field where the construction work on which he is employed is in progress, according to the report of the investigating state trooper.

Arthur Kenneth Sites, 27, Fairfield R. I., was also driving south behind the Border sedan. Police say that directly opposite the field into which Border planned to turn was a road leading off to the left. Border, according to the state officer, gave the hand signal for a left turn, then started to pull over to the left and Sites, thinking that Border was going to turn into the road on the left, attempted to pass on the right side just as Border turned to the right. Total damage was $100.

LOCAL GUARD PRAISED FOR CAMP SUCCESS

Fifty-four members of Adams County's Troop C, First Pennsylvania Cavalry, returned to Gettysburg Monday night at 7 o'clock from a four day encampment at Indiantown Gap with the praise of their commanding officer, Capt. C. Arthur Brame.

Captain Brame said today he is preparing a formal statement commending the men on the "splendid job" they did while at Indiantown Gap, and in the meantime could only say that the contingent was a "swell bunch of men who did a swell job."

Twenty-eight of the cavalymen qualified as marksmen with the Thompson sub-machine gun and the pistol on the Indiantown range Saturday. The list will be ready for publication Wednesday, Captain Brame said today, following official compilation of the scores.

Second Encampment

The encampment was the second for Troop C and according to present arrangements a third similar camp will be held in 1947, Captain Brame revealed.

The men left Friday morning in their trucks and armored cars for Indiantown Gap. Arriving there they were assigned barracks next to the state police contingent also present at the Gap for a training period.

Much of the work of the reconnaissance troop other than drill was to transport infantry soldiers to various activities.

Monday the outfit transported the infantry troops to their trains, some miles from the encampment and was among the last troops to leave the camp.

On Sunday the local troop took part in a parade of the 1600 state guardsmen and 350 state police held before high ranking officials and army officers.

INDEX DOCKETS OF RECORDER TO BE REPAIRED

Old and much-used index dockets in the office of Register and Recorder Winfield G. Horner at the court house will be repaired by a new process involving paper-splitting and welding at a cost that is said to be a fraction of that involved if the records were to be transcribed to new volumes.

A court order directing that the work be done at the cost of the county and "with the least possible interruption of the use of the volumes" was signed in court Monday afternoon by Judge W. C. Sheely in response to a petition from Mr. Horner.

The big dockets, each containing several hundred pages, give the location of deeds, mortgages and estate papers in the extensive files in the office vault. The indices are in almost constant use during office hours.

The Hultman process, patented by a Harrisburg firm which will do the work on the old records, involves splitting the pages of the old record books, inserting new, strong paper which will receive the binding clamps, and then welding the split sheets and the new wedge together.

Practical Rebinding

The process permits a practical rebinding job without trimming the old pages which are written full to the margins and could not permit trimming for regular rebinding. Court house officials said the only other possible way of keeping the old records usable and available would be to have them transcribed and carefully proof read to insure their accuracy. The cost of transcribing a single index is said to about equal the cost of having all 18 volumes "welded."

In his petition to the court Monday Mr. Horner said that "through constant use" the 18 volumes of indices "are in bad condition and should be replaced by new indices to be prepared and made of the whole or parts" of the old records.

The cost of doing the work by the Hultman process is given as $775.

Mrs. Buehler then assumed the chair and announced the appointment of Mrs. Scharf as chairman of the publicity committee with Mrs. Charles T. Ziegler.

The annual membership campaign will be conducted during the week of October 28. Tickets for the series of three concerts to be presented this winter will be $2.50 for students and $5.00 for adults, each plus tax.

A letter of thanks was addressed to Colonel and Mrs. John S. Rice and Dr. and Mrs. Fred Tilberg for use of their pianos during the concerts last year.

Miss Anna Cairns and Miss Dorothy Lee were appointed to the auditing committee.

A large crowd attended the meeting.

MOST GERMANS OUST REDS IN "FREE VOTING"

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

Communism has been rejected by an avalanche of moderate and conservative German votes in the British and French zones of occupation, just as was the case in the American zone a few weeks ago; in the Russian occupied provinces of Brandenburg and Mecklenburg the Communist-dominated Socialist party won by a big margin.

That's a highly significant development—a matter of vast import not only to the Reich but to Europe as a whole.

The significance lies in the reasons why the vote in the American-British-French areas eschewed the Red ism. And perhaps the easiest way to get at our analysis is first to state the problems which the voters had to face. There are three issues involved:

1. From the moment Hitler came to power in 1933 until he died in the fortress beneath the smoking ruins of his capital, he had hammered hate and fear of Communism into his people. The only time he ever eased up on it was when he signed with Moscow the non-aggression pact which precipitated the world war. To the average German, Communism was the last word in evil.

2. Before the war Germany was the economic keystone of the continent, and the consensus of experts is that the Reich's legitimate economic life—that is, an economy shorn of all military possibilities—must be restored if Europe as a whole is to be rehabilitated.

3. History may record that the greatest long-term disaster which befell Germany and numerous other parts of Europe wasn't material but was spiritual and moral destruction. Hitler himself was chiefly responsible for this because—as this column has pointed out before—he deliberately debased his own people and those of other countries which came under his control.

Well, now, the majority of Germans find no answer to any of these three problems in adopting Communism.

Fear Red Tide
Problem number 1 speaks for itself. Even those Germans who abhorred Hitlerism—and there were many among the older folk—still are fearful of the Red tide from the east.

Concerning the economic ills of problem 2, I found during my recent visit to Germany that there were few in the zones occupied by the three Western Allies who saw any remedy in Communist doctrines.

The third issue—that of spiritual and moral rehabilitation—looms large in the calculations of the many who believe that these elements are essential for the stability of a nation in the long run. You will see recognition of this in the fact that the heaviest vote appears to have been polled in all three western zones by religious combinations. Denominationalism was cast aside for the purposes of the election.

Here again the answer is that Communism—which holds that religion is the opiate of the masses—obviously doesn't fill the bill for anyone who has religious leanings. Hitler robbed many of his young folk of their religious but his observation is that the great majority of Germans still subscribe to religion in some form.

Woman Injured And Pet Dog Is Killed

Mrs. Harry Myers, Goodyear, was injured and her pet dog was killed late Saturday afternoon when they were struck by an automobile at Goodyear on the Gettysburg pike.

Mrs. Myers, was treated on the scene for sprained left ankle, bruises of the body and face lacerations by Dr. David Stayer, Mt. Holly Springs.

The accident happened when Mrs. Alice D. Crouch, 69, of Gardner, Mass., stopped suddenly to avoid hitting the dog as it ran across the road in front of her car. Raymond I. Slaybaugh, 34, Aspers R. 1, was following Mrs. Crouch and struck the rear of her car, shoving it into Mrs. Myers as she stooped along side of the road to pick up the dog, state police reported.

Police said a charge of reckless driving will be lodged against Slaybaugh before Justice of the Peace Clarence Starnier, Dickinson township.

COUPLE JAILED FOR STARVING SERVANT GIRL

Bedford, Pa., Sept. 17 (AP)—For beating and starving a 17-year-old servant girl in their home, Dr. David Lee, veterinarian, and his wife of near Bedford today were under sentence to serve eight months in jail.

The terms were imposed yesterday by Judge J. Colvin Wright after the Lees entered pleas of guilty to charges of aggravated assault and battery. The couple was directed also to pay fines of $300 and the costs of prosecution.

Betty Reffner of Altoona, the girl they were accused of beating with an electric cord and locking in a boarded room without clothing, is now living with relatives in Blair county.

When she escaped from the Lee home last June she weighed about 75 pounds. After two weeks in a hospital, her weight had increased to 94. Now, three months after her harsh experience she weighs 134.

At the time of their arrest last June, the Lees were taken before a justice of the peace and fined $200 each on charges of cruelty to a minor. Additional charges were then filed by the state police.

"They starved me to make me work harder," Betty told officers in June. "They would make me work all day before they would give me anything to eat. For several days once, they gave me nothing but orange pulp, from which all the juice had been squeezed. I stole some food and hid it in the barn. When Dr. Lee caught me eating it, he beat me with an electric cord. Then he locked me in a room in the house and boarded up the windows. He took my clothes away. I watched my chance and took some clothes and ran away."

Urges Ousting Of Wallace Or Byrnes

Sabetha, Kas., Sept. 17 (AP)—All

M. Landon, 1936 Republican presidential candidate, contended today that President Truman must either remove Secretary of State Byrnes or Secretary of Commerce Wallace from his cabinet or "America's leadership in the world will be hamstringing."

The oil man and former Kansas governor said in a speech prepared for delivery at the First District Young Republican convention here that "Communists are rejoicing . . . at the conflict on foreign policies in the Truman cabinet."

He added that if both Byrnes and Wallace stayed in the government posts the United States would be placed in the "position of carrying water on both shoulders" as a result of Wallace's recent foreign policy speech.

KILLS WOMAN, WOUNDS WIFE, THEN SUICIDES

Pittsburgh, Sept. 17 (AP)—Em-

bittered by a domestic quarrel which had progressed to the courts, a young father early today shot to death his mother-in-law, wounded his estranged wife and then killed himself only a few feet from his son's crib, homicide detectives John F. Stack and Louis Hamel reported.

The dead were William Weston, 24, discharged from the army last April, and Mrs. Helen Oles, 49, his mother-in-law, in whose home the shooting occurred.

Weston's attractive wife, Pearl, 20, an expectant mother, was taken to St. Francis hospital suffering bullet wounds in the neck and right arm.

Stack and Hamel said Weston gained entrance to the home he left 10 days ago by kicking in a locked door and began firing from a .38 caliber revolver after a few bitter words. The shootings occurred in a bedroom shared by Mrs. Oles, her daughter and the Westons' 15-month-old son, Billy.

The officers reported that Mrs. Weston, questioned at the hospital, told them she and her husband had been having domestic trouble and that only yesterday she had filed a complaint against Weston in desertion and non-support court.

Stack and Hamel learned that shortly before the shooting Weston had been injured in a street fight, suffering possible fractured ribs. After being treated at a hospital Weston left his brother and two friends, Stack said, telling them he was "going to see my wife."

BULLET JAYVEE GRID TEAM TO PLAY 4 GAMES

Prof. C. E. Bilheimer, athletic director at Gettysburg college, today announced a four-game schedule for the Bullet junior varsity football team.

The present varsity squad will be split when college begins classes in October and those pared from the group will form the jayvee squad.

Roy Bloomingdale, former Juniata college luminary, who was added to the Bullet coach staff this year, will have charge of the junior varsity.

It is expected the varsity squad will consist of about 35 players and a similar number will be carried by the jayvees. With the reopening of school a number of new candidates are expected to report, most of whom will probably be assigned to Coach Bloomingdale's outfit.

The schedule follows:
October 25—Johns Hopkins, away.
November 1—Western Maryland, home.
November 8—Muhlenberg, away.
November 15—Delaware, site unselected.

YORK CATHOLIC HERE ON FRIDAY

Gettysburg high school's football squad began drills Monday evening in preparation for their first home game of the season here Friday night when York Catholic high will be the opponent.

The Maroon coaching staff spent most of the workout in pointing out the errors committed last Friday against Delone Catholic.

It was very apparent in the opening game that more drive is needed by both linemen and backs. If a decided improvement can be made in this phase of the game some surprising results may develop.

To an observer it appeared that nearly all of the Maroon youngsters were satisfied in carrying out their initial assignments on a given play and failed to carry through above that. Too many made contact with their opponent and then failed to aid their team-mates with additional blocking efforts. Improvement in that type of play would serve to lift the pressure on a number of players upon whom is being placed too much responsibility.

The Maroons came out of their opening game with the usual number of bruises and minor injuries. Guy Donaldson, end, suffered a knee injury which may force him out of the coming contest.

Players Win All Contract Reforms

New York, Sept. 17 (AP)—Practically all of the contract reforms requested by major league baseball players will be in the 1947 documents in addition to a few the big league performers hadn't previously made public.

The $5,000 minimum salary per year and an allowance of $25 a week to a player for spring training expenses above transportation, room and board—the primary changes asked by the players—were agreed upon by the magnates at a joint meeting of club owners of both leagues here yesterday.

Biggest surprise of the confab was the request to limit the reduction of a player's salary to 25 per cent of the amount he received the previous season.

Eastern League

Scranton, Pa., Sept. 17 (AP)—A fighting Hartford baseball club that came from behind to knock Albany from the Eastern league playoffs tangles with a favored Scranton nine tonight in the opening of the final series for the Governor's cup.

Hartford, which finished fourth in the regular season, takes on the Miners without a rest. The Chiefs toppled Albany 11-4 at Hartford last night to take the semi-finals four games to two. Scranton, pennant winner this year, gained the finals by taking four straight from Wilkes-Barre.

Albany piled up a 3-1 lead last night before Hartford suddenly came to life with a three-inning spurge that netted the Chiefs 10 runs.

Bob Williams, a southpaw, will take the mound for Hartford to-night. Tommy Fine, a 23-game winner this year, or Mel Parnell will flip for Scranton.

InterState League

(By The Associated Press)

Lefty Weldon Lindamood held the Owls to seven scattered hits last night and singled in the seventh inning with the bases loaded, to drive in the winning run for Wilmington.

President Bob Carpenter and General Manager Herb Pennock said the new car will be waiting at Shibe Park for the lucky fan to drive home.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, Sept. 17 (AP)—Prepare yourself for a deluge of wisecracks about Brooklyn being the only place where they have to call baseball games on account of bugs... That swarm of gnats Sunday evening was one thing even the Dodgers couldn't dodge... Illinois U. already has refunded more than $6,000 on orders for tickets to the Notre Dame that couldn't be filled after the 70,549 seat stadium was sold out September 1... Massillon, Ohio, Washington high school is sending out its football dope book on a nationwide basis, just like the colleges...

ETAOIN SHRDLU
In a recent account of a ball game at Roanoke, Va., a typographical error made Roland Hughes' story say the wall was thrown to third base... Athletic Director Rex Mitchell of the city recreation department thought the gag was too good to keep so he sent it along to this corner with the statement that he would bill the composing room for damages to the ball park... Rex decided silence was better when he found his secretary had addressed the letter to "Rocky Fellow" plaza in New York.

SPORTS BEFORE YOUR EYES
Although the effort to arrange an international running horse race in connection with one Lexington, Ky., trots starting September 25 have fallen through, they still have a two-race series between Ouster Volo and Tracy Hanover, two-gaited champs of the U. S. and Canada... The winner gets the North American title, cash and a cup.

New York, Sept. 17 (AP)—Mickey Vernon and Stan Musial continue to lead the American and National leagues respectively in the race for individual batting honors as the 1946 baseball season draws rapidly toward a close.

Vernon, left-handed hitting first baseman of the Washington Senators, increased his average from .345 to .354 during the past week that included games of Sunday while Musial, St. Louis Cardinal first sacker, jumped his mark from .365 to .368.

Ted Williams, thumping outfielder of the Boston Red Sox, vaulted over teammate Johnny Pesky into the runner-up slot in the American league's derby by tacking seven points to his .336 mark of a week ago. Pesky trailed Williams' .343 figure by six points.

Musial's lofty figure almost insures the Card slugger of his second hit crown since 1943 as Johnny Hopp of Boston is second with a .342 mark.

CLEAN COAT TALE

Grand Island, Neb., Sept. 17 (AP)—Someone left a raincoat in Dr. N. A. Zuppan's office last May. Zuppan hung the garment in his reception room, believing the owner would come back and claim it.

But after several months the coat wasn't reclaimed, so Zuppan took it to a shop to be cleaned.

But he isn't going to get the coat out of the cleaners. The owner of the establishment identified it as his garment.

DOGERS LOSE ON 4-RUN HOMER BY NICHOLSON

By JACK HAND (AP Sports Writer)

St. Louis' glee over Bill Nicholson's grand slam homer that sunk the Brooklyn Dodgers should be tempered by the knowledge that the Cardinals must face the self-same Chicago Cubs in six of their remaining 11 games.

St. Louis holds a two-game advantage with time rapidly running out in their favor. The Brooks are now one down in the loss column and three on the winning side with only 13 to play as compared to 11 for the Cards.

The Cubs' 10-7 win went to Hank Borowy over Rookie Paul Minner, who made the mistake of throwing a fast ball to Nicholson with a 3-2 count and three on.

Clinch 4th Place
Billy Southworth's Boston Braves clinched fourth place, the first time they have finished in the first division since 1934, by shutting out Cincinnati, 4-0, in a night game.

Kenny Raffensberger whitewashed Pittsburgh, 2-0, for the Phillies in the other night game, witnessed by 19,274 fans at Shibe Park.

Detroit protected its 2½-game edge over New York in the second-place scrap in the American league by hammering Bobo Newsom from the hill and downing Washington, 11-7. The Yankees outlasted the St. Louis Browns, 7-5. Joe DiMaggio driving in three runs to help Reliever Joe Page pick up his ninth win.

Philadelphia, Sept. 17 (AP)—Approximately 2,000 employees of the city's two sugar refineries were idle today as the nationwide Maritime strike continued to immobilize 113 ships in this port, including four carrying 48,000,000 pounds of raw sugar.

Officials of the Pennsylvania Sugar Co., which shut down yesterday, said they had laid off 1,150 workers until raw sugar again becomes available for processing.

The Franklin Sugar Co., which employs about 800, shut down Friday and an official of Stephen F. Whitman, Co., one of the largest candy manufacturers here, said his plant has only a week's supply of sugar and would have to lay off its 1,150 employees when that is exhausted.

Grand Island, Neb., Sept. 17 (AP)

Someone left a raincoat in Dr. N. A. Zuppan's office last May. Zuppan hung the garment in his reception room, believing the owner would come back and claim it.

But after several months the coat wasn't reclaimed, so Zuppan took it to a shop to be cleaned. But he isn't going to get the coat out of the cleaners. The owner of the establishment identified it as his garment.

Postpone Baseball Hearing To Sept. 24

Pittsburgh, Sept. 17 (AP)—Pennsylvania Labor Relations board examiner Conrad H. Checco today postponed until Tuesday, September 24, a hearing of charges of unfair labor practices filed against the Pittsburgh Pirates baseball club by American Guild Director Robert Murphy.

The continuance was granted at the request of Attorney Paul J. Winschel, appearing as club counsel in the absence of Seward H. French, Jr. Murphy did not appear today but was represented by Attorney Herman Lipsitz who acceded to the delay.

Examiner Checco said the "board would be very reluctant to continue this case any further" than September 24, adding that it was the board's intent to dispose of the action before the current baseball season ended.

It is estimated that seven times as many people in the United States own life insurance now as in 1900.

TAMI EASY TO HIT, SAYS LOUIS

By SID FEDER

New York, Sept. 17 (AP)—Joe Louis glad the slow, fat-melting, punch-sharpening grind of training was over, admitted Tami Mauriello is easy to hit as he sat in his dressing quarters.

And who shuddered to think of what might happen to Tami in Yankee Stadium tomorrow night, because you remembered the assorted lumps and bumps the Bomber has raised on other guys he's been able to hit down through the years.

"Yep," he confessed, "that Tami is easy to hit with either hand, and especially the left."
The heavyweight champion had just completed his final session of sparring with a four-round frolic against a quartet of punch catchers late yesterday. After waltzing around with Perk Daniel, George Fitch and Teddy Randolph, he took on Eldridge Eastman, a wide-swinging swatter from Norwalk, Conn., with a style somewhat similar to Tami's. He stepped inside of Eastman's curveball pitching and belabored him with southpaw shots until the Connecticut clouter must have thought he was catching a doubleheader for Lefty Gomez.

Being a fellow who always gives the other man a chance, Joe included, in his final pre-fight look at tomorrow's taffy pull, the possibility that the Bronx Barkeep might conceivably nail him a lucky Sunday shot. But it seemed Joe had a hard time convincing even himself, let alone the boxing writers.

Dies In Same Room 4 Years After Wife

Pittsburgh, Sept. 17 (AP)—Mrs. Louise Payton answered a knock at her door and found 66-year-old Joseph Sterbacky standing there, his hat in his hand.

"I used to live here," said Sterbacky. "Four years ago I carried my wife out of her room upstairs—dead. I'd like to go up to that room now and lie down a while."

It was an unusual request but Mrs. Payton consented. The man apparently went to sleep and she did not disturb him. He had looked so distressed.

Next morning she knocked at the door, got no answer. Opening the door, she found Sterbacky still lying on the bed. The coroner said he had died of a heart attack.

Today's Talk

DIVIDENDS—NOT IN CASH!

I have been reading a most interesting story by Mrs. E. M. Richardson, called, "We Keep A Light," and which I shall tell you more about in another talk. But in telling of the many struggles and sacrifices to make things go happily on an island off Nova Scotia, where they lived, she made the remark that all of their work paid dividends, but—"not in cash."

That remark, by a woman, who with her husband, keep a Light off the rocky shores of an island, which warns many and many a ship away from danger, made me think of the many investments I have made in life, and which others have furnished to me in the shape of capital to invest—but always without cash. Whenever anyone does a beautiful act that warms the heart of another, that is capital invested, for both the one who gives and the one who receives. Each receives dividends—but not in cash.

An owner rents his home. But if that one who rents loves that home, improves it, and adds to its attractiveness, and in addition improves the grounds, plants a garden of flowers about it, and makes it a mecca for friends, the owner gets his rent in cash, but the dividends of happiness go to the renter—but not in cash!

The most precious possessions in this world do not involve cash. Nor do the greatest gains in happiness. The worker who devotes himself conscientiously, and with enthusiasm, to his tasks, thinking of the joy that he gets out of them, and of the many things that he learns from day to day, takes far more to his home than what is represented by his pay envelope. He takes home experience, companionship, and the satisfaction of having done a good day's toil. These things are dividends—but not paid in cash.

We get dividends when we feed the birds, who pay in songs and their cheerful presence. The musician gets dividends far greater than his compositions.

The late Charles M. Sheldon, who wrote "In His Steps," on account of some strange neglect in copyright, got nothing for its sale that went into the millions and was translated in many languages all over the world. But he got far more than a fortune from royalties. He got the appreciation and love of millions for his remarkable story that blessed these millions of people. He died exceedingly rich—but not in cash.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "By Example"

Just Folks

SUREST TREASURE
A little garden gay with bloom,
White curtains at the window pane;

At night, a pleasant sitting room,
The children safe in bed again;
A car in which to come and go;
What more can riches vast bestow?

A few bright bits of silverware;
Some pretty china cups and plates;
A few good friends who wait to share

The harsh decisions of the Fates;
At night, a loved one's welcoming kiss;
Can rich men purchase more than this?

A doctor answering the call
Whenever one you love is ill;
Long shelves of jelly in the fall,
And coal enough the bin to fill;
Ribbons and frocks in good supply;
What more can rich men's money buy?

Oh, there are yachts and tapestries,
And pictures rare and costly things,
But happiness is not of these—
Out of the heart alone it springs,
And who has love and peace of mind
Has treasure of the surest kind.

Here is Summary Of Big Uproar Over Wallace's Talk On Foreign Policy

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, Sept. 17 (P)—Here's an ABC on the uproar over the Henry Wallace speech on this country's foreign policy.

President Truman and Secretary of State Byrnes shape our foreign policy. They decide how we deal with other countries.

Byrnes is in Paris now. He's working with other nations on World War II peace treaties.

He's working and battling in line with the foreign policy he and Mr. Truman have laid down.

Wallace, being secretary of commerce, does not make foreign policy. But he thinks we ought to make some changes in the policy we have. He wrote a speech, saying so. This was unusual in itself. Members of Mr. Truman's cabinet, like Wallace and Byrnes, usually stay out of one another's field.

Byrnes, in Paris, didn't see the speech. And Wallace did not show it to any of Byrnes' helpers in the state department.

Got Truman Approval
Instead, he took the speech directly to Mr. Truman last Tuesday for his approval, and got it. He went off to New York to deliver it Thursday night.

Thursday afternoon, a few hours before Wallace talked, Mr. Truman told a news conference in reply to questions that he not only had approved the whole speech but that it was in line with Mr. Byrnes' foreign policy.

This is where the storm broke and for these reasons:

1. The Wallace speech certainly didn't seem to be in line with the foreign policy Mr. Byrnes is following. It suggested changes.

2. But since Mr. Truman said he had approved the whole speech, did this mean that what Wallace suggested would be our new foreign policy?

3. Where did that leave Mr. Byrnes? Why was Mr. Truman letting Wallace announce a new foreign policy instead of Mr. Byrnes?

4. How could Byrnes remain as secretary of state if Mr. Truman, without consulting him, had changed our foreign policy to a line different from the one Byrnes was following in Paris?

Points Of Difference

Here were main points of difference between what seems to be our present foreign policy and what Wallace suggested:

1. We have a "get tough with Russia" policy, although the State Department doesn't like that kind of language. Wallace suggested we cut out the tough stuff.

2. We've been standing shoulder to shoulder with Britain in bucking Russia repeatedly. Wallace says we ought to have a foreign policy independent of Britain and not let Britain lead us into trouble.

3. We're on record against "spheres of influence." That is: domination by big nations of smaller nations around them. Wallace speaks of Russian and American spheres of influence as if they were now operating.

And Wallace says further: Let's keep our nose out of political doings of nations close to Russia and let Russia do the same for us.

The storm became furious Friday after Wallace's Thursday night talk. Republicans jumped on Wallace for making the speech and on Mr. Truman.

JEWISH RIOTS FLARE ANEW

Jerusalem, Sept. 17 (P)—Palestine police, warned by a new threat of intensified terrorism in the Holy Land, searched the Sarafand area Monday for a bomb-carrying band of saboteurs who attacked a police station and wrecked power lines in a daring raid last night.

The warning of new violence came from the secret radio of Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground organization, a few hours after police had announced the arrest of 23 Irgun leaders.

Fifteen other men, described as "suspected terrorists," were arrested by police this morning in a Jewish quarter on the outskirts of Jerusalem and were held for questioning.

The broadcast said that Irgun, which has claimed responsibility for many of the recent outbreaks of violence in Palestine, planned renewed and almost continuous acts of terrorism. The announcer did not state whether Irgun was responsible for the recent bank holdups in Tel Aviv and Jaffa, in which three Arabs were killed, but he did declare that the secret organization was in need of funds.

Previously, police had indicated that another Jewish organization, Garlach, J. Harry Stine, Geo. F. Young, J. Louis Sowers, J. Ed. McCammon, Fred G. McCammon, C. H. Wilson, Preston Tate, Wm. B. McIlhenny, Wm. H. Tipton, Robert H. Currens, Chas. B. Tate, C. K. Gilbert, Harry Miller and others.

George D. Reynolds, Esq., and family, of St. Louis, Mo., spent several days here last week, visiting the battlefield. Mr. Reynolds is a son of Prof. Reynolds, formerly of this place. He was U. S. District Attorney during President Harrison's administration.

man for approving it. Editorial writers condemned the talk.

Pretty quickly it became clear Mr. Truman was going to have to say this was the new policy of the United States or else, in some way, make it clear that it wasn't.

He called a special news conference Saturday and read a statement which said:

He didn't mean, when he said he had approved the whole speech, that he had approved the speech as constituting a statement of this country's foreign policy.

Mr. Truman said further he only meant that he had approved Mr. Wallace's right to deliver the speech. But yesterday Wallace, not finished at all, said: "I intend to continue my efforts for a just and lasting peace and I shall, within the near future, speak on this subject again."

So it seems Mr. Truman soon again will have to approve—or disapprove—Wallace's right to speak on foreign affairs. If he disapproves, then Wallace seems to be faced with this:

Either keeping quiet, so long as he remains in Mr. Truman's cabinet as Secretary of Commerce, or quitting his job and saying what he pleases as a private citizen.

GUAMANIAN, LED BY PRIEST, ACCUSE YANKEE

By DOUG LOVELACE

Guam, Sept. 17 (P)—A group of 100 Guamanians, led by a Catholic priest, demonstrated with boos and placards Monday against Navy Lt. George Ray Tweed, the man who eluded the Japanese during their 31-month wartime occupation of Guam.

They blamed Tweed for indirectly causing the deaths of a Catholic father and four Guamanians at the hands of the Japanese.

Tweed returned with a new automobile as a gift for a Guamanian friar he credited with helping save his life during a precarious existence dodging incessant Japanese pursuers during the war.

As the presentation ceremony opened a crowd of 100 Guamanians marched into the plaza muttering angrily and bearing signs of protest.

Among the inscriptions were "we resent Tweed's appearance on this island," "our necks for a Chevrolet," and "be square, be decent, be off." Tweed, of San Diego, Calif., strode toward the marchers and snatched a sign reading "what about Tweed's desertion in the face of the enemy?" and tore it into shreds, stamping it under foot.

The Guamanian demonstrators, led by a Catholic priest, booed loudly when Tweed approached the microphone to speak, but presently marched out of the park in a body, leaving only a few Guamanians to hear the American.

Accused Priest

Tweed presented a 1946 Chevrolet to Antonio Artero, the man who showed him a hiding place in the hilly back-country of Guam and brought him food once weekly for 31 months. Tweed said he was sincerely grateful to the many Guamanians who aided him and regretted he could not give each one a new car.

Catholic Father Oscar Calvo, explaining the demonstration he led, said Tweed in his book "Robinson Crusoe USN" had accused Father Duenas, another Guam priest, of "betraying the secret of the confessional."

Father Calvo said the Japanese tortured and eventually killed Father Duenas.

EVEN BRITAIN "FROWNED" ON WALLACE TALK

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

British officialdom heaved a mighty sigh of relief on learning that Secretary of Commerce Wallace's foreign affairs pronouncement—which was widely interpreted in England as "anti-British" and "dangerously pro-Russian"—didn't represent a change in American foreign policy.

Downing street was "very pleased," to use the phrase of a foreign office spokesman, at President Truman's statement that he didn't endorse Wallace's speech but rather the right to make it. The spokesman might have added with equal truth that the average Briton—or the average European, for that matter—would be vastly astonished that a cabinet minister should have such freedom of unilateral action.

In Britain—and in most, if not all, European countries—a statement by one member of cabinet is binding on the whole cabinet, from the prime minister down. For this reason no member of the cabinet ever makes a statement which might even remotely affect government policy without having discussed it with the premier and his colleagues.

Backed By Cabinet

If approval is given, then the entire cabinet stands back of it. If the prime minister disapproves, then the statement cannot be made or if by any chance it were made, the minister who had violated the code would be forced to resign and his statement would forthwith be disavowed by the government.

There's no such thing as a prime minister emulating Voltaire and telling one of his cabinet: "I disapprove of what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it."

At any rate, no premier would say that in relation to a matter of government policy. Apart from this restriction the cabinet minister can say what he "jolly well" pleases.

Britons Are Careful

In Britain this cabinet tradition is followed so closely that a cabinet minister won't give an interview "on the record" regarding government affairs unless the matter is submitted to the cabinet for approval. I have encountered that many times during my reporting abroad.

Speaking of interviews, I've had them with a lot of heads of state during my more than thirty years in the AP Foreign service and they offer interesting variations. For instance, I had the unusual experience of getting an interview over the

Postpone Trial Of 5 Red Conspirators

London, Sept. 17 (P)—Five Communist leaders charged with conspiracy in the organization of a squatter of vacant London luxury apartments received on eight day stay of arraignment this morning when Prosecutor H. A. K. Morgan announced that he did not intend to "go on with the case today."

The attorney for the Communists, four of whom are London municipal officials, agreed to postponement of the hearing until Sept. 24 and the accused were freed on continuance of the same bond posted when they were charged last week.

Although the prosecution and defense were apparently in agreement on the delay there was no indication in court of the reason for the postponement.

The formal charge accused them of "conspiring together with other persons to incite persons to trespass on property; and aiding, abetting and directing such trespass against the peace."

Voices Louder For Quieter Airplanes

Washington, Sept. 17 (P)—Voices are becoming louder in favor of quieter airplanes.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration said Monday complaints about noisy aircraft have more than doubled since the start of the year.

They're coming in direct, by way of congressmen and even through the White House.

Administrator T. P. Wright told a reporter the CAA "is doing all it can to induce pilots to consider the detrimental effects of noise on aviation in general."

"But when all is said and done," he added, "the real answer is in the hands of the engineers—reducing the noise at its source."

phone from the late David Lloyd George, England's famous premier during the first World War. When he had finished I asked if he would like me to submit the interview to see of the direct quotes were correct.

"Oh, no," he replied. "You will handle it all right."

ANNOUNCE NINE VIOLENT DEATHS OVER WEEK-END

Pittsburgh, Sept. 17 (P)—Homicides claimed three lives in the Pittsburgh area over the week-end, and six other western Pennsylvanians died in accidents.

Stabbed in the lower abdomen with a pair of scissors following a jealous quarrel Wednesday night, Catherine Bryce, 36, died in her room at Pittsburgh Saturday night. A man who police said remained in the room with her until her death was held as her assailant.

The man claimed Miss Bryce refused to let him summon a doctor.

A remark about another man's girl friend cost Charles Poljak, 22, of McKeesport, his life. A beer glass swung at him in a Duquesne club broke and severed his jugular vein yesterday.

Unconscious for a week, Gene Naughton, 73, of Pittsburgh died yesterday without having been able to tell how he was injured. He was found in a dazed condition when he returned to his room Sept. 7. Police said he might have been black-jacked.

Scalded To Death

Nelson Beckner, 46, of North Warren, was scalded to death by steam Saturday while working on a steamfitter at the North Warren state hospital.

John Wolnaka, 32, of Collier township, Allegheny county, was killed by an automobile whose driver failed to stop. A suspect was later arrested.

At New Castle, James Reed, 60, died of injuries received when he was thrown from his horse on a bridge path, and at Berlin, Pa., seven-year-old Ruth Elizabeth Flamm died of burns suffered in a bonfire in the yard of her home.

William F. Jones, 40, an Allquippa steelworker, drowned at the Pyramating dam, where he had been fishing. Dr. H. H. Walker, deputy coroner, said Jones apparently fell asleep and toppled into 12 feet of water. Game refuge keepers recovered the body.

Mrs. Mary E. Jones, 69, a widow, was killed by an automobile near her home at Brags in Greene county after stepping out of a friend's car.

Chapter 6

Quickly Martin dropped the curtain. Behind him Barbara repeated, "Good night," and the doorknob rattled in her hand.

He spun, "Oh, no," he muttered. "Oh, no, you don't." He sprang at her, caught her arm as she darted into the hall and dragged her back into the center of the room. She stumbled, caught herself and looked at her wrist in the merciless light of his hand. She took a moment to catch her breath, then asked, lightly enough, "Is this where I scream?"

"Did you scream before?" he countered. "Did he scream? Or did the first wallop knock him out?"

Her eyes lifted. Surprise and alarm showed in them as they surveyed his face. She made a feeble effort to free her arm. "You'd better make it plainer if you want an answer."

"All right, I'll make it plainer," he drew her, not gently, to the bedroom doorway and opened the curtain again. "Your father won't have to buy him off now. He couldn't say a word against your reputation if his soul depended on it."

"Oh!" Her free hand came up, the fingers straight and rigid; it paused for a quivering instant while she stared in horror at Richard Searle's corpse, then moved to blot out the sight. "Let me go," she whimpered. "Please let me go. What could you gain by hurting me?" she asked.

"Hurt you?" He was bewildered until the truth burst upon him with stunning suddenness. He demanded, "Are you trying to accuse me of killing him?"

"I didn't say so. I didn't say anything." "You didn't kill him? Honestly?" She hesitated as if she suspected a trick in the question before she shook her head as one in a daze.

It was fantastic, yet he couldn't help believing her. "It was exactly the way I told you," she said. "I hadn't even begun to suspect anything was wrong when you came in."

"That leaves me in a bad spot. I can't for the life of me think who could have done it, but the cops won't have any trouble making up their minds. At least a hundred people know I hated Searle's guts. Pretty nearly every man saw me knock him down an hour ago. Everybody will take it for granted that I killed him." He looked at her. "I didn't, you know."

"I can't think who could have done it." He scowled. "He must have been killed within the last half or three-quarters of an hour. The time margin isn't wide enough to give me a clear bill."

"I can tell them he was dead when you came in. That wouldn't prove you hadn't been here earlier, of course, but maybe it would help."

"Don't stick your neck out. The rawest recruit on the District Attorney's staff could build a lovely case against you if he had the details. You and Searle were sweethearts once, and all the world has it on high authority that a woman crossed in love is worse than the devil himself."

She had grown paler. "Then you're not the only one who is in a bad spot." "Murder has a nasty way of trying to fasten itself on almost anyone who happens to be around. But you're luckier than I am, because this isn't your apartment. You can go home and not tell anyone you were here."

"What if they found out anyway? My running away and keeping still would only put me in a worse light."

"That's a chance you'll have to take."

She said with sudden spirit, "I don't see why I have to take it. And if I do, why don't you take it with me? Go away from here, too. I mean, and stay where people will see you, and come back in several hours, and pretend you've just discovered the body."

He considered her words. "You've got something there. If we took the chance together we could alibi each other, besides arranging to have a lot of witnesses see us in a lot of places. But I wouldn't ask you to do it on my account."

"If we're going," she said, "we'd better stop arguing and get out of here before it's too late."

He stood up. "Wait a minute." He went into the bedroom.

There were things he had not noticed in his previous hasty glances. One of them was an automobile tire iron, eighteen inches long, flat and heavy.

He did not touch the metal. If there were fingerprints on it, they would not be his; and he was fairly sure they would not be Barbara's.

But he did touch the folded scrap of paper in one of the dead hands. Reluctantly he opened the fingers, feeling them nearly as warm as his own. Then he jumped and choked back another surge of nausea as the hand and arm swung down and brushed his leg, eerily like the living arm of a restless sleeper.

Now that the grotesque attitude of prayer was destroyed, the corpse seemed less gruesome.

The bit of paper was not going to be of much help to anyone Martin decided, for it bore only a scrawled notation of his own address. He put it in his jacket pocket.

There was nothing else to be done here, and much to be done elsewhere.

"Can we go now?" she asked.

"As soon as we understand each other." He wiped moisture from his forehead. "It's twelve-thirty. You've been away from the Gold Mine Club just over half an hour. Right?"

She nodded.

"People saw us talking together there," he said. "We were making a date. All right?"

"It's all right with me."

"You kept our date five or ten minutes after leaving Morrissey's. I'll take you now to the place where you met me, and arrange to have the time angle check when someone starts asking questions."

"I'm ready."

He left the lights burning and covered his hand with his handkerchief when he pulled the door shut. The broken lock did not click and he made no attempt to fasten it.

TRUMAN FACES TOUGH PROBLEM WITH WALLACE

Washington, Sept. 17 (AP)—President Truman faced one of the most critical decisions of his administration today—whether to sanction further criticism of his foreign policy by Henry A. Wallace or, possibly, to ask his Secretary of Commerce to resign.

Wallace, who declared his intention yesterday of keeping up his fight for changes in the conduct of this country's international affairs, was scheduled to see the President either today or tomorrow.

High among the considerations obviously involved in that across-the-desk meeting will be the fact that the Congressional elections are only seven weeks off.

Republicans already are making political capital of Wallace's speech in New York last Thursday and the resulting controversy over it, while Democrats acknowledge privately that they consider the incident their toughest "break" this year.

Wallace Pleased

Democratic National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan discussed the situation with Mr. Truman at some length late yesterday.

As for Wallace, friends represented him as pleased over the results of his initial efforts to make a national issue of the state of American relations with Russia.

In Paris, Secretary of State Byrnes maintained complete personal silence on the whole question of Wallace's demands for a softer policy toward Russia. But there was ample evidence that State Department officials here were considerably disturbed by what they regard as an appearance of American disunity to the rest of the world.

It was understood from top officials that State Department leaders are considering a recommendation to Mr. Truman that any further speeches by Wallace on foreign policy should at least be subject to State Department clearance.

And pressure to keep Wallace as a member of the government was reported fairly strong because of what many of Mr. Truman's advisers consider to be the Commerce secretary's considerable political following.

Yet among lawmakers of both parties there were increasing demands for what Sen. Kilgore (D.-W. Va.) called "a unified front" in the handling of foreign affairs.

BRAKES CAUSE DEATH

Butler, Pa., Sept. 17 (AP)—Warren M. Armstrong, 38, coal cutter of Butler R. D. 2, was killed and his wife, Freda, seriously injured in an auto mishap near here, W. A. Lehner, Butler county deputy coroner, reported last night. Lehner said faulty brakes apparently caused the car to go out of control, after which it hit a tree and was demolished against an abutment.

STATE MILK YIELD HIGH

Harrisburg, Sept. 17 (AP)—Milk production in Pennsylvania farms neared record breaking proportions during the month of August, the state agricultural department said today.

Secretary Miles Horst said that 465 million pounds of milk were produced in the commonwealth during August, compared to 471 million pounds for the same month of 1945 when an all-time August record was set.

Excellent pastures in most sections of the state aided in producing this large amount of milk, Horst said. As a result Pennsylvania takes its place with 18 states that reported high production per cow.

Farmers reported that grain stubble fields furnished some excellent feed on those dairy farms that were short on grain, said Horst. The only discouraging note, said Horst, was found in the continuance decline in the total number of milk herds in the state.

Eggs also were plentiful in August, with farm flocks producing 176 million, or 14 million more than in August of 1945. The average price of eggs to farmers advanced 5.1 cents a dozen over July's 46.9 cents.

Horst said there was a fairly light demand for poultry in August because "red meat was plentiful." As a result the average price per pound was down two cents from the July average of 30.9 cents.

24 REACH SHORE FROM LOST SHIP

Lewes, Del., Sept. 17 (AP)—Twenty-four survivors of the Norwegian tanker Marit II that broke in two on Friday 148 miles off Elizabeth City, N. C., on the cold front of a tropical hurricane rested safely today in east coast ports as hope waned for 14 other missing crew members.

Six of the crew, picked up from a life raft Sunday night by the S. S. Gulf Hawk, were landed here yesterday and taken to Beebe hospital. They suffered exposure and minor cuts but none was seriously injured. Eighteen others, picked up by the tanker Panamoco and landed at Morehead City, N. C., yesterday, prepared to leave today for Rocky Mount, N. C., where they will board a plane for New York. Three sustained minor bruises but all were in good physical condition.

Meanwhile as army, navy and coast guard aircraft and surface craft continued their search for possible survivors of the foundered 7,417-ton Marit II, Lt. Cmdr. J. R. Scullion, coast guard public information officer at Norfolk, Va., said it was unlikely that additional survivors would be found.

With lips still parched, the six seamen who were landed here told of the terrifying 56 hours they spent clinging to a life raft that pitched and wallowed in a 30-foot sea after the ship broke in two at the spot where a German torpedo had struck the vessel four years ago.

Second Mate Rolf Williamson, 32, brother of the missing master of the vessel, Capt. Leif Williamson, 35, said the ship broke so quickly that the bridge, where Capt. Williamson and his wife were standing, was awash almost instantly.

Army Units Reaching U. S.

(By The Associated Press)

Five vessels are scheduled to arrive today at east and west coast ports with more than 7,500 service personnel.

The arrivals:

At New York
Koundouriotis from Bremerhaven, ten troops; Joseph Gale from Leghorn, five.

At San Francisco
General Patrick from Yokohama, 2,433 troops.

At Seattle
Marine Serpent from Yokohama, 2,433 troops.

At San Diego
General A. E. Anderson from Chian, 1,960 marine, navy and civilian passengers.

DEAD HEAT
Philadelphia, Sept. 17 (AP)—George Fonder, Lansdale, Pa., and Shorty McAndrews, Allentown, Pa., finished in a dead heat for the Yellow Jacket Speedway's 15-lap special event for winners of previous midget auto races. The winners covered the distance over the one-fifth mile track in 3:29.14.

DIES OF INJURIES
Greensburg, Pa., Sept. 17 (AP)—Injuries suffered in an auto crash at Lincoln Heights, near Jeannette, 24 hours before, caused the death of Mrs. Addie C. Berry, 69, of Greensburg, in a hospital here yesterday.

Frown On Men Who Quit Service Schools

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 17 (AP)—President Truman's military aide says he has told Selective Service officials that the chief executive doesn't relish the idea of football players leaving the service academies to play at their home schools, the commercial appeal said today.

In a Washington dispatch, the newspaper quoted Major Gen. Harry N. Vaughan as saying that "our action in this matter is entirely passive. But I did tell Selective Service of the President's attitude."

The article said Vaughan added: "We take a very pale view of a man who accepts a West Point appointment during the war, accepts the money West Points gives him, accepts the $2,000 a year that is spent on his education and maintenance and then when the shooting is over and armored vest is not a necessity, resigns and then goes back home to play football."

RELIGIOUS AND CIVIL FREEDOM REIGN IN STATE

(Editor's Note: This is the second of a series of articles in connection with Pennsylvania Week.)

Harrisburg, Sept. 17 (AP)—Founded by William Penn and the Quakers years after other colonies on the mid-Atlantic seaboard had been established, Pennsylvania early forged into the lead among English settlements of the new world.

Credited to Penn's policy of civil and religious freedom and opportunity for individual advancement, the rapid growth started almost immediately with the founding of the province and its chief city—Philadelphia—in 1681.

The Quaker policy of tolerance early attracted to America thousands of artisans and farmers from Holland and the small principalities on the Rhine river in Germany—forebears of the Keystone state's Pennsylvania Dutch.

Liked Religious Freedom

Many of the early colonists, usually frugal and industrious folk, sought new homes in Penn's colony because of the religious liberty offered here—unique in that age, while still others came because of the disturbed economic conditions in their homeland.

The religious groups ranged from the Unitas Fratrum—United Brethren—or Moravians led by Count Zinzendorf to the Amish Mennonites whose unique religious beliefs and customs of dress still set them apart from their neighbors in the heart of Pennsylvania's southeastern farmlands.

But with them came thousands of persons of the leading Protestant faiths—Reformed, Lutheran, and the Presbyterians of Scotland and North Ireland. The latter settled on the frontiers near the remaining Indian tribes and in the years of conflict that followed Braddock's defeat in 1755 formed the backbone of the native American forces which turned back the French and Indians.

Won't Bear Arms

The Mennonites and the Amish, who had split off from the larger group in the homeland overseas, were distinguished among Pennsylvania's early settlers for the same things which brought persecution to the Quakers in England—refusal to take up arms.

They held then and still do to the belief that peaceful means should be used to settle any dispute. They also declined to hold public office, forego lawsuits and in their rejection of what they termed worldly things, clung to the simplest garb down through the years.

Even today the Amish, and to a smaller degree the Mennonites, are a group apart with their broad-brimmed hats, their beards, their bonnets for women and girls alike and in the case of the former—their horses and buggies.

Best of Farmers

Speaking of the Pennsylvania Dutch in general, Miles Horst, state Secretary of Agriculture, himself descended from early Swiss settlers, said wherever they are they "stand out among the better class of farmers in the nation."

"They do so because they tenaciously hold on to certain fundamental principles of successful agriculture which they originally brought to Penn's colony and which they have improved upon down through the years," he said.

(Tomorrow—Agriculture, Pennsylvania's biggest industry.)

Couple Who Aided Nazi Escape Held

Philadelphia, Sept. 17 (AP)—A 40-year-old factory worker who admitted he and his 42-year-old wife engineered the escape of a former bodyguard of Hermann Goering from a California prisoner of war camp, was held in $10,000 bail for a hearing tomorrow on charges of conspiracy and aiding escape.

The worker, James McBride told U. S. Commissioner Norman Griffin at a hearing yesterday: "I was too much in love with my wife. She deliberately betrayed me and my country."

McBride indicated he would not oppose extradition to Detroit where FBI agents arrested his wife, Joan, and held her in $5,000 bond. Also arrested there was the Reichsmarshal's former bodyguard, Rudolph Joseph Soelch, 24.

The FBI charges Mrs. McBride hid Soelch for six months while he masqueraded as "Mr. McBride" and worked as a baker and bus boy in Detroit where Mrs. McBride was a waitress.

BUY OUTFIELDER

Philadelphia, Sept. 17 (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics, shopping around for new material to help pull them out of the American league cellar, have purchased outfielder Austin Knickerbocker from Toronto of the International league for $10,000.

MAN IS ELECTROCUTED

Irwin, Pa., Sept. 17 (AP)—Ellsworth Calvin Bollinger, 33, of Straw Pump, was electrocuted yesterday while attempting to move a steam shovel under a telephone cable at White Valley. Some part of the machinery touched a high-tension wire. Bollinger was an employee of the Acco Coal company at Delmont.

Burglar Felled By Lucky Swing In Dark

Meadville, Pa., Sept. 17 (AP)—William Hughes, caretaker of the Elks club here, heard a scratching noise in his sleep Sunday night.

Thinking it was a mouse, he reached for a club and took an angry swing in the dark.

He flickered on the lights to find he'd kayced—a burglar, who was about to climb out a window with $100 from Hughes' billfold.

RE-ELECT BONNIWELL

Philadelphia, Sept. 17 (AP)—Common Pleas Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell, a candidate for National AAU vice president, was reelected to his tenth term as president of the Middle Atlantic States AAU last night at the annual reorganization meeting.
